Abstract

Nursing education at South Dakota State University began in 1935 with the establishment of a Department of Nursing under the Division of Pharmacy at the request of the South Dakota Nurses' Association. Initially a five-year program with clinical experiences at Sioux Valley Hospital, it became a four-year program in 1952 and received National League for Nursing accreditation in 1960. The department became the Division of Nursing in 1956 and the College of Nursing in 1964. Subsequent developments included graduate programs, continuing education, off-campus opportunities for registered nurses, accelerated bachelor's programs, and doctoral degrees.

The College of Nursing Records document administration, curriculum development, accreditation, clinical education, and student and faculty activities. Materials include reports, correspondence, meeting minutes, course syllabi, program proposals, grant records, publications, scrapbooks, photographs, and ceremony programs. Records also document hospital affiliations, continuing education, the RN Upward Mobility Program, and projects involving the Indian Health Service and the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations. The collection provides evidence of changes in nursing education and the college's role in expanding educational opportunities and developing clinical and community partnerships throughout South Dakota.

Biography

Nursing education at South Dakota State University began in 1935, when a Department of Nursing was established under the Division of Pharmacy at the request of the South Dakota Nurses' Association. Leila Given served as the first director, and Rachel Hasle received the first degree in 1936. Martha Krause (1939-1943) and R. Esther Erickson (1943-1954) subsequently directed the five-year program, with clinical experiences provided by Sioux Valley Hospital in Sioux Falls.

A four-year program began in 1952, and Public Health and Rural Nursing were added to the curriculum in 1954. Helen Gilkey became director in 1955, when clinical training arrangements shifted from Sioux Valley Hospital to sites in South Dakota and Minnesota. The department became the Division of Nursing in 1956, with Gilkey as its first dean, and moved to Solberg Hall in 1957. National League for Nursing accreditation was granted in 1960.

The division became the College of Nursing when South Dakota State College became South Dakota State University in 1964. The college developed departments in Nursing, Health Science, and Continuing Education and moved to the Home Economics-Nursing Building in 1969. Its programs included nursing education, health science coursework, and continuing education for health care personnel.

In 1977, all clinical components of the nursing program were returned to South Dakota. That year, the South Dakota Board of Regents approved plans for a master's program and an off-campus program allowing registered nurses in the West River area to earn bachelor's degrees in nursing. State and federal funding supported the development of these programs during 1978-1980.

Under Roberta K. Olson, dean from 1994 to 2013, the college introduced an online master's program in 2002, a Doctor of Philosophy in Nursing in 2005, and a Doctor of Nursing Practice in 2009. The Sioux Falls Health Sciences location was established at Southeast Technical Institute in 2005, housing an accelerated nursing program and master's courses. An accelerated bachelor's nursing option in Aberdeen received South Dakota Board of Nursing approval in February 2012.

In July 2025, the college consolidated its Rapid City operations in renovated space at Black Hills State University-Rapid City, including classrooms, simulation laboratories, offices, a testing center, and the Native American Nursing Education Center. The college's baccalaureate, master's, Doctor of Nursing Practice, and postgraduate advanced practice registered nurse certificate programs are currently accredited by the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education.

Scope and Content

Academic records include curriculum plans, course syllabi, instructional materials, program proposals, evaluations, and student handbooks for undergraduate, graduate, and continuing nursing education. Accreditation documentation includes self-studies, survey reports, correspondence, and visiting team reports associated with the South Dakota Board of Nursing, the National League for Nursing, and the Commission on Collegiate Nursing Education. Other materials concern the development and review of master's and doctoral programs, nurse practitioner education, maternal and child health, gerontological nursing, and nurse anesthesia.

Outreach and clinical education records document hospital affiliations, agreements with clinical agencies, community and rural nursing experiences, continuing education, and the RN Upward Mobility Program. Grant applications, progress reports, needs assessments, and correspondence concern educational programs in Aberdeen, West River, Pierre, and other South Dakota locations, including projects involving the Indian Health Service and the Pine Ridge and Rosebud reservations. Related materials address nursing education planning, legislation, and coordination among nursing education administrators in South Dakota.

Scrapbooks, newsletters, magazines, brochures, newspaper clippings, photographs, class composites, and event programs document student organizations, faculty and staff, alumni activities, scholarships, anniversaries, lectures, and graduation, pinning, hooding, and white coat ceremonies. Photographs and other digital materials are also held on CDs, floppy disks, and a USB drive. The collection documents changes in nursing curricula, accreditation, clinical training, and educational outreach over time. Together, these records provide evidence of the college's role in nursing education in South Dakota and its relationships with hospitals, professional organizations, and communities throughout the state.
